The Monaco Yacht Show is the world leader event in superyachting.

Set in September in the iconic Port Hercules, the MYS represents the pinnacle of the superyacht lifestyle against the glamorous backdrop of Monaco since 1991.

Every year, the world’s most respected shipyards display 120 extraordinary one-off superyachts and megayachts, of which 40 new launches are annually unveiled in a worldwide debut.

For four days, yacht owners, future superyacht purchasers or charterers, decision-makers in the yachting and luxury industries attend the Monaco Yacht Show to participate in one of the most influential business networks on Earth.

On docks, the MYS curates the showcase of a selection of 580 leading companies in the industry: from the most reputable superyacht builders and nautical suppliers, top yacht designers, luxury manufactures and the best brokerage houses to the most sought-after tenders and water toys, prestige cars, helicopter and private jet manufacturers.

摩纳哥游艇展
不仅仅是一个非常著名的标志，地中海巡航区，摩纳哥公国本身长期以来就是超级游艇的所有者和客人的首选目的地，使其成为独一无二的旗舰活动。”

回到展览的起源，真是太令人惊讶了。1991年展出的32艘超级游艇，在过去的第8届，则有80艘相关的展览商，准备参加。

随着游艇行业本身以指数级的速度扩张，2018年期待580家展览商来自38个国家，展现出超凡的121艘世界上最具影响力的超级游艇。

虽然这些121艘超级游艇是最大的吸引力，但对我们来说，重要的是你没有看到，当你登船参观这些令人印象深刻的船只时，是那些在建筑或设计方面提供每一件元素的公司。这意味着设计师们，每周都在进行创新的研究和开发，投入这个概念; 专营超级游艇的豪华商品公司，确保每一艘游艇的玻璃、靠垫和著名的壁画上的画作，都尽可能的美丽; 品牌开发最好的水上玩具和救生艇，以提供最好的超级游艇体验。这就是为什么我们自豪地展示这些产品和服务，以及最终产品。

The MYS exhibition extends once again over almost the whole of Port Hercules and will also benefit from the restructuring by the Principality of Monaco of Quai des États-Unis, giving priority to the presence of naval architects, shipyards and brokers on the quays right next to their yachts on display in the water.

Visitors also find a new line of superyachts, extension of Quai Chicane, at right-angles to Quai des États-Unis, replacing the former floating pontoon connected to T Central.

The reorganization of the display in the water is backed up by a new themed orientation of the various exhibition zones, as ever with the aim of making the experience of future yacht buyers even more enjoyable.

Future owners accompanied by their captains or representatives are more and more closely involved in the building of their yachts and they can visit the exhibition tents to look for the latest in hi-tech equipment (Darse Sud) or the objects and furnishings presented by prestige luxury goods firms and craftsmen (Parvis Piscine).

The Quai Jarlan hosts part of the display of luxury tenders. Since the Tenders & Toys exhibition area launched in 2017, it has been devoted to yacht tenders and water toys and this year occupies more space on Quai Antoine 1er.

The Car Deck, the exhibition of prestige vehicles and the Starboard lounge-exhibition complete the superyacht lifestyle exhibition on Quai Antoine 1er.
How does the fleet at the Monaco Yacht Show compare with that of the previous three editions? For starters, the yachts at this year’s edition are slightly larger, with an average length of 51.5m for the motor yachts on display compared to an average length of 49.5m for the last three editions.

The sailing yachts also are larger, measuring 45.6m versus 43.8m for the last three years.

Not only the average length has increased, but also the average volume, which went up by almost 15%, from an average 623GT over the past three editions to an average 714GT in 2018.

The same pattern can be seen in the average value of yachts on display, which has increased to EUR 27 million this year, compared to an average EUR 25.9 million.
SUPERYACHTS

This year’s MYS see 121 superyachts over 25m in length on display. Here is a selection of some jaw-dropping luxury vessels. And it was hard to choose.

TENDERS & TOYS

FOR YEAR #2, THE EXHIBITION FEATURES THE BEST OF TENDERS & TOYS WORLDS, NOW OFFERING A COMPLETE SUPERYACHT LIFESTYLE.

Fast chase-boats, latest sport tenders, full carbon e-bikes, inflatables and even a remotely operated underwater vessel are among the top water accessories that will make the tender exhibition at Quai Jarlan and the dedicated Tenders & Toys area “must visit playgrounds” of MYS 2018.

High-end water toys have always been part of the MYS and it stresses out the importance of this complementary exhibition aside the large yachts on display.

The extended new zone, introduced to the superyacht industry just last year and located on Quai Antoine Ier, now offers a complete superyacht lifestyle environment in ultra-luxury spot.

Once again - the Monaco Yacht Show 2018 Tenders & Toys zone will complement the range of afloat tenders at the long lasting legendary Quai Jarlan, located on the opposite side of the show. With those displays, Monaco Yacht Show offers the best of two worlds - superyachts and their exciting gears.

This is when the garage become the big player. Tenders are the key element of superb holidays on board a superyacht.

“I strongly disagree with the industry that looks at a tender only as a technical part of a superyacht”, comments Carlo Nuvolari of the renowned Venetian design studio Nuvolari Lenard that is responsible for iconic projects like the 106m Black Pearl or the 82m Alfa Nero. “Yachts get bigger and many of them can’t fit in harbors and have to stay outside far away in the sea at anchor. In this case, a stylish, custom-made tender with the same family feeling as the main boat is the perfect way for an owner to show off. The focus shifted on great tenders around 10 years ago and it keeps growing. That is why tenders are crucial now.”

Even more, they are lifestyle changers. They help get to secluded harbors thanks to the shallow draft, ride from the superyacht to the port and back with speed and in style, and even receive a pure splash of emotions by pressing the accelerator and going full speed ahead of the wind. And, most importantly, they mirror the strong personality of the owner.

Indeed, tenders are not just a fun extension of the main superyacht. They give younger clientele a chance to enter the much-desired superyacht niche. The presented toys were equally stunning. Among them innovative paddle-boards, private submarines, helicopters, an electric surfboard, the very first autonomous diving drone and a flying car (MYS 2017). Toys give the opportunity to do some sports outside that’s why you can also find exciting sports equipment as the latest minimalistic design canoe.

Every year more than a thousand of tenders of various types hit the water and so do a number of new innovative toys. Some custom tenders’ price may reach five million euro (source: Superyacht Report, Tender issue 2017). The estimated cumulative size of this business is over a couple of billions of euro a year.

“The Tenders & Toys area is our response to the yachting industry’s goal to attract a new, younger, superyacht clientele”

“Entertainment is one of the leading criteria in the selection of a yacht to buy or charter with the new generation of superyacht enthusiasts”

How do we attract a new wave of superyacht owners?

All eyes are on emerging UHNWIs, and the yachting industry is busy engaging with the priorities of millennials in the hope they will take to the water like the previous generation did.

A study led by the International University of Monaco (IUM) in association with the Italian shipyard Rossinavi researches the likes and dislikes of the emerging millennial yachting market.

Technology, innovation and the environment were just some of the priorities to emerge from the study, which Rossinavi factored into a series of superyacht concepts specifically aimed at younger owners. Younger owners are going to appreciate adventure and sports more than mahogany and cigars. Luxurious comfort is less important to them than owning something new and surprising.

For young, self-made millennials still growing their business interests, yachting is an occasional pastime rather than an enduring passion. The yacht being only part of their fast-moving lifestyles. They don’t think of a yacht as an end in itself, but as a sort of floating pied-à-terre for attending events like the Monaco Grand Prix or the Cannes Film Festival.

They’re not interested in huge cabins, but they are into water sports and lots of exterior space for entertaining large groups of friends. They might spend a weekend on board in Sardinia, go back to work, and then join the boat the following weekend in Ibiza. It’s a different concept from the traditional two-week cruise in the summer.

With the focus on open-air socialising, water sports, gym and spas, formal dining rooms and salons will be even less relevant in the future. This shift in how yachts are used is driving designers to look fresh at conventional general arrangements.

But there is a risk involved in designing yachts for a specific demographic. Defining what distinguishes one generation from another is not an exact science and grouping millennials into a single homogenous group is unlikely to result in solutions that suit everyone.

Another generalisation is that millennials value life experiences more than material possessions. They will still want the use of superyachts, but will be less interested in owning the asset. In fact, they may even see ownership as a restriction.

We are going to see a time when the traditional idea of yacht ownership starts to follow the same path as car-sharing services: more convenient than a traditional taxi, and a real alternative to owning a car. There are huge challenges ahead, but also huge opportunities for those companies that find the right balance in the evolving market.

Fractional ownership is not a new concept, but has enjoyed only limited success in the yachting world. According to the study, the Millennials are going to do things differently and the product will have to be re-packaged, but the yachts will not change that much and the ownership concept will not go away anytime soon. They will want their own product like the rest of us. Things change, but human nature stays the same.

‘Re-packaging’ the product further involves how the industry communicates and interacts with the emerging market. In the past, owners were typically introduced to designers or shipyards at boat shows or via yacht brokers. Today, first contact is more often made directly through social media channels. It’s a much more immediate and personal form of communication: seeing their photos on Facebook means we can get a pretty good idea of their interests and tastes and it makes understanding their needs or preferences that much quicker and easier.

Social media and messaging apps are also affecting the way yacht brokers do business with owners. A broker, and an active vlogger, also confesses that most of his business leads, especially amongst younger clients, come from his YouTube channel. More and more clients who contact him through direct messaging on Facebook or with Whatsapp—and they expect an immediate response.

The average age of superyacht owners is decreasing, but whether millennials will fill the generation gap remains to be seen. Research is ongoing, but records show that self-made owners under the age of 40 make up only a tiny fraction of the total.

This is not surprising when you think that they’re still busy with their businesses and owning a superyacht is not yet a priority. The important thing is that they charter yachts, and the industry has to be very clear about what it costs to run a yacht. In some cases, you can buy a large yacht relatively cheaply, but the running and maintenance costs over a period of five years can be much higher than the initial purchase price.

The charter sector is strong and getting stronger, which suggests that prospective owners appreciate the yachting lifestyle and are checking out the market, possibly as a preamble to buying.

Founded by Mr. Ulysse Nardin in 1846, Ulysse Nardin has written some of the finest chapters in the history of Haute Horlogerie. The company’s earliest renown came from its links to the nautical world: its marine chronometers are among the most reliable ever made, still sought by collectors around the world.

A pioneer of cutting-edge technologies and the innovative use of materials like silicium, the brand is one of the few with the in-house expertise to produce its own high-precision components and movements.

Today, from its sites in Le Locle and La Chaux-de-Fonds in Switzerland, the brand’s continuing quest for horological perfection centers around five collections: the Marine, the Diver, the Classic, the Executive and the Freak.

Gross Tonnage
While the superyacht industry usually refers to a yacht’s overall length, another important measure of size is a yacht's Gross Tonnage (GT). GT is a measurement unit for the total volume of all enclosed spaces on a ship. GT is an important measurement unit because it is used to determine many aspects such as manning regulations, safety rules, registration fees and port dues. A good example of this is reflected in the large number of yachts which measure 499GT, as yachts measuring 500GT and over have to comply with the Maritime Labour Convention (MLC), which includes different standards for the crew’s quarters among others.

Construction book
What we mean by the construction book is the total number of yachts in various stages of construction. This includes yachts built to order, yachts started on speculation and projects which are on hold, pending possible resumption of construction. A project that was cancelled before construction began, on the other hand, will be removed from the construction book.

Types of sales of newly built yachts
We distinguish between a number of different ways in which a newly built yacht can be sold.
- New order: a yacht is sold before construction starts.
- Speculation order: the yard starts building a yacht on its own account and then sells it to an owner before completion.
- In-build resale: a yacht is sold from one owner to the other during construction.
- Stock sale: a yacht built on a speculative basis by the yard is sold to an owner after completion.

What is a superyacht?
A superyacht is a motor or sailing yacht that is at least 30-metre in length.

Apart from this minimum length, we use a fairly generous interpretation when it comes to defining what is a superyacht and what is not.

For example, privately owned research vessels and yacht support vessels are included in the superyacht fleet.

As of early August 2018, the world’s fleet of operational superyachts over 30m amounted to 4,889 yachts. 278 yachts were out of service. Some of those are conversion projects which have been stalled for so many years that it is unlikely that they will ever be finished. Some yachts out of service are severely damaged and awaiting their fate, while other yachts have been laid up for a very long time. At SuperYacht Times, we have tracked 165 yachts since World War Two which we have classified as complete losses. The actual number of complete losses is probably higher, as tracing the final fate of old or abandoned yachts can be extremely difficult.

85% of the operating fleet or 4,170 yachts measure between 30 and 50m. 597 yachts have a length between 50 and 80m, leaving just 123 very large superyachts over 80m. Out of the entire operating fleet, only 780 yachts, or 16% of the fleet, are sailing yachts. In recent years, the share of sailing yachts in newbuild deliveries has been around 10%, so their share of the total fleet has gradually declined.

Close to one-third of the operational fleet (1,524 yachts) is over twenty years old. A similar number of yachts (1,465) are eleven to twenty years old. However, no less than 1,811 yachts were completed in the last ten years (2008-2017), which illustrates how fleet growth has accelerated. Not only has the fleet grown, the average size of yachts has grown too. Two-thirds of the 20+ year-old fleet measures between 30 and 40m in length, while that share is very similar for the eleven-to-twenty-year-old fleet. For the yachts completed during the last ten years though, the share of 30-40m yachts is only 57%, even though in terms of numbers of vessels, the size of the 30-40m market remained roughly the same throughout this time period (approximately a thousand yachts per ten years). So, the extra growth of some 300 yachts over the past ten years has come from the larger yachts.

Average yearly newbuild deliveries (both motor and sailing yachts) have hovered around the 140-150 mark in recent years. So far in 2018, we have already recorded 94 deliveries with another 126 yachts still planned for delivery this year, although in all likelihood quite a few of those boats will be delayed until next year. Nevertheless, the number of 180 deliveries for 2018 which we forecasted in our 2018 IQ Report still seems to be achievable.

The construction book currently amounts to 429 yachts, including 39 projects which are on hold but have a good chance of construction resuming in the near future. This means that the number of yachts in the construction book is slightly less compared to the 440 projects we counted at the end of 2017. What will the total at the end of 2018 be? It all depends on how new yacht sales perform throughout the remainder of 2018. More about new yacht sales later on. Would you like to know more about the construction book of superyachts? Our SuperYacht Times IQ report 2018 offers extensive information about the construction book and all the other subjects touched upon in this Monaco Yacht Show 2018 Intelligence Report.
When looking at sales of superyachts we have to distinguish between sales of newbuild yachts (built to order, started on speculation, sold from stock, in-build resales and on-hold resales) and sales of used yachts.

New-build yachts for sale

At the start of 2018, there were 440 superyachts under construction, 135 of which were offered for sale, a share of 31% of the construction book. At the start of 2017, this share was 36% of the construction book, meaning that a lot of on-spec newbuild projects were sold during 2017. If we look at the situation as of August 2018, we see that 145 superyachts out of a total amount of 431 yachts under construction are offered for sale. This means that the share of yachts for sale has gone up again, to 34%. Of the 145 yachts for sale, 127 are on-spec projects and 18 are offered for sale by the owner of the in-build yacht. The increase in the number of newbuild yachts for sale since the start of 2018 is entirely accounted for by on-spec projects. This could indicate that on-spec builders are confident enough to start a significant number of new projects.

The 145 in-build superyachts for sale are being built in sixteen different countries. Italian yards account for 45% of these newbuilds for sale. Turkey is in second place with 14% of the total, which means it has traded places with the Netherlands, which now sit in third place with a 13% share of the in-build yachts for sale. All three of these countries feature a number of well-known yards which mostly build yachts on speculation.

Used yachts for sale

Around 20% of the of the operational fleet of 4,889 superyachts is offered for sale. The 985 superyachts for sale are made up of 812 motor yachts and 173 sailing yachts. The number of both motor and sailing yachts for sale is slightly up compared to the beginning of 2018.

If we look at the size of used yachts for sale, the majority of motor yachts for sale (483 out of 812) are in the 30 to 40m size range. 19% per cent of the total operational fleet of motor yachts in this size range is for sale. Yachts between 40 and 50m in length account for another 27% of motor yachts for sale, with the remainder spread over the larger sizes. 22% of the world’s fleet of operational sailing yachts over 30m is for sale, and this percentage is pretty much the same over the different size ranges.

New superyacht sales

New superyacht sales in 2017 totalled 183 yachts, which represented a 27% increase over the figure for 2016. The figure for 2017 is still a far cry from the record number of 241 new yachts sold in 2008, but it is one of the best results in recent years. 2018 seems to be on track to match the good sales performance of 2017. By the end of June 2018, 77 new yachts over 30m in length had been sold, 73 of which were motor yachts and 4 sailing yachts. In itself, that number seems to be lagging in comparison to the number of 2017. However, we do expect the number of newbuild sales to catch up in the remainder of the year, as news of more newbuild orders is expected to reach the market. Yachts measuring between 30 and 40m are responsible for the majority of sales in terms of numbers of new yachts sold. 44 of the 77 new yachts sold so far this year are in this size bracket.

Sales of new yachts between 40 and 60m are still slightly behind on last year, but again we expect to find out about more new deals in the remainder of the year. Sales in the 60-80m segment are slow, while the 80m+ segment is doing very well with sales numbers for 2018 already matching those for the full year of 2017.

Used superyacht sales

Sales of used yachts over 30m reached 257 units over the course of 2017. In the first half year of 2018, 131 yachts were sold, which means that used superyacht sales are on track to match or even exceed last year’s number. Of the yachts sold so far this year, 47 were between one and ten years old. Another 76 were between eleven and 25 years old, with the remainder being over 25 years old. Yachts between 30 and 40m long took the lion’s share of sales with 89 out of 131 yachts. Sales of used yachts between 40 and 60m amounted to another 36 yachts, with the remaining six yachts all measuring around 70m. Of the 131 sold used yachts, seventeen were sailing yachts.
